

Hi everybody!

I hope you are all staying safe and are doing okay. I have been busy setting you lots of learning jobs to have a go at on our class page. On SeeSaw, I will also add activities for you to try.

Here are few fun ideas that you could do at home over the Easter break. I hope you have a lovely Easter and know that I am thinking of you all. Email me any photos of what you get up too, I would love to see them! Love, Miss Powley x

DEN OR CAVE BUILDING

The easiest way to create a stable den is through using a blanket or bed sheet and cover a table or some other furniture moved together. You can create quite a spacious den using four chairs arranged in a square with the blanket placed over the back rests. Add few cushions added into the cave and your kids will have a great time for sure.

A HOUSEBOUND TREASURE HUNT

Create a map of your home and hide small items around it. Mark each piece of hidden treasure on the map

Off clues "I am cold and make a 'bing bing' noise if left open". The answer is the fridge, of course.

Even once you have found all the treasure, why not organise your own hunt? Draw your own map or come up with your own cryptic questions to send your adult on a great search.

LIFE SIZE DRAWINGS

Stick a load of A4 sheets of paper together (or if you have a big paper roll even better!) and place it on the floor. Draw around your family members.. From this moment on there is no way to stop getting creative: colour in, add accessories to the figures like stickers or stamps, design clothes with old material offcuts or other things you might find in the art drawer.

KIDS INDOOR GYM

Transform your living room into a gym and create some fun sports stations. You can put a trail of paper sheets on the floor to walk over without touching anything else but the paper. Time jumping on the spot (maybe spin around while jumping).

A gymnastics station for stretches, tucks and handstands.

To make it more competitive you can use the stopwatch to time the duration of each exercise.. It's about the fun and switching back and forth between the stations rather than aiming for the next world record.

FINGER PAINT ANIMALS

Why not try to create a full zoo of handprint and finger painted animals - use different body parts to create different animals!

A ROADWAY CREATED ACROSS THE HOUSE WITH INSULATION TAPE

Car mats are great fun but what if you created your own one? You could grab some tape and make roads all over the carpet. Think about how they will connect up, where they will lead to, and what sights you might need to add along the way. You could also use the same technique with the life size art portraits and draw your own scene on a ginormous piece of paper. Talk about what amenities the newly created community might need, and what toys are going to live there.

PAPER MACHÉ

Making 3D art is great fun. Inflate a balloon, grab some newspaper and a PVA glue/water mix, and get creating!

BALLOONS

Who doesn't love a balloon party? There are lots of games to be played and science experiments to embark on!

ROCK PAINTING

Make a quick dash outside to grab some rocks. Dry them off and practice painting them, or decorating them with markers.

COOKIE DECORATING!

COLOURING-IN

Colouring-in your favourite superheroes.

HIDE AND SEEK

A classic indoor game !
